Travelling to France

If you are considering driving the whole way down, or coming by train... just know that we advise against it. However, we've put together some information just in case it's what works best for you

TRAIN

- Train to London Euston (1h-2h)
- go to St Pancras International
- Take the Eurostar to Paris Gare du Nord (2h20)
- go to Paris Gare de Lyon (14min Metro)
- Take a TGV (High Speed Train) to Aix-Les-Bains (3h30 direct, 6h30 if 1 change)

Google Maps is confident that this can be done in one day - provided that all of the train times align.

DRIVE

The way is pretty straight forward. It is quicker to go through the tunnel under the Channel, as opposed to taking the ferry (although the view doesn't quite compare).

Once you're in Calais, you will mainly be driving on the motorway - beware that you will have to pay fees at different tolls.

This can definitely be done in 13-14h, but we highly recommend you split the journey and stop somewhere overnight.

- Walking / Cruise skating

You can walk for about 12 miles (there and back) along the lake, and enjoy the beautiful views. There are a few small 'beaches' to stop at and test the water.

It is a 15min drive to get to the lake from Pauline's family home.

The circetercian Abbey, built in the 12th Century, has been a regional jewel of architecture and landscaping. Overlooking the lake, its gardens notably inspired many poets and artists, and while this is still an active religious structure, the whole site is open to visitors.

The Abbey is a 30min drive from Pauline's village, and entry is Free. One of the discovery cruise also goes around the Abbey.

- Aqua activities

You can rent kayak, paddleboards, canoes, and even motorboats (no license required) off local businesses.

The Lake is about 2.5 km wide, which is about 2h there and back on a kayak. Alternatively, you could opt for a longer journey - there are many small beaches on which you can stop and rest.

If you are more of a lounge, the whole Esplanade is punctuated by benches, and stretches of grass. The town's swimming pool also gives access to a private beach with water slides and inflatable water structures (depending on the time of the year)

Lyon

This one goes out to the skaters. Besides being the most beautiful city in the world in Pauline's eyes, Lyon is a pretty cool place to visit, hang around, and skate. Thanks to Aidan's skatepark app - which you probably all already have, we compiled a list of the best suggested spots. Also included is a list of cool shops and places you might wanna check out!

- Place Bellecour

In the centre of the Presqu'île (peninsula in between the two rivers that cross Lyon), this plaza is a must-see to chill for a while.

Wall Street skate shop (Lyon 1)
Advice Shop (Lyon 5)

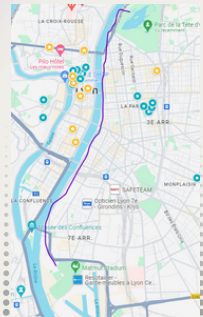

- Vieux-Lyon

The Renaissance district of Lyon is famous for its 'traboul' - which are very small streets going all round the hill, as well as its cultural and architectural heritage.

Musee du Cinema et de la Miniature (Lyon 5)

- Les Quais

If you want to cruise skate, you can ride along the Rhone river for about 5 miles (the path ends in a public park on one end, and at Interpol on the other). You will find many cafes, restaurants, as well as boat-nightclubs.

Pauline & Aidan

THURSDAY-
SATURDAY

- Cathedrale de Fourvière

Take the gentle hike through the Old-town of Lyon, take a break by the vestiges of a Roman theatre, and make it to the top of the Fourvière hill. You can visit the beautiful basilica for free, and enjoy Lyon from a height.

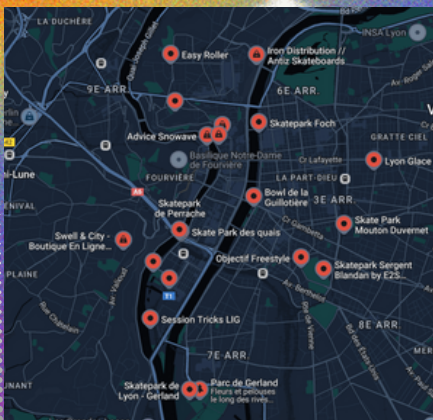

- Parc de la Tete d'Or

While most of the park is free to walk/skate through, there is also an entire zoo and botanical gardens to explore.

- Skating spots (Mairie du 1er, Republique, quais)

Please don't break any bones! especially if your last name is Wilson...

We kindly ask that you do not attempt to jump the Lyon 25 stairs. Though if you do wish to see them, you can take a stroll along the Interpol HQ and the International city district.
